Hi Marc, I will be happy to call you but I am in Italy now - a very different time zone. That's less of a problem, however, than the fact that I have very little leverage with the decision making at this point. I went to some of their meetings last year as a liaison from Cambridge Bethlehem People to People Project - a group which I am ver involved with ( people like John and Kathy Roberts, Catherine Hoffman, Phyllis Bretholtz - an older crowd). We support the Boycott and anything that will most be the needle on Palestine. I volunteered to go to their meeting to keep in touch and so we could help in whatever way we could because they did not have much experience with Cambridge politics. I was away all summer, however, and did not reconnect in the fall because of being out of town and then busy with other CBPPP stuff as well as other things.
I strongly suggest you talk directly with William or Sonya. Both of them have really appreciated your input so far. As I said, I will be happy you give you a call tomorrow and to wayward on any thing you would like me to say to William, but it might be more effective, at this point , coming directly from you.
Chris

I don't think this is your fault but I asked at the last meeting we had for everyone to kind of slow down a little bit and now I hear that there is a huge rally planned for April 23rd on City Hall lawn in support of the policy order and people are flying in from all over the country excetera excetera. At this point I'm not even sure that this policy order is going to be on the agenda on the 23rd and I really think that there was a misstep in the group picking a date before anything was finalized. So I'd like to just talk with you because I know I can trust you and we can talk openly. Thanks
